(Huntington Beach, CA, November 17, 2026) The right hardware can set the tone for an entire kitchen or bath, adding character, a touch of refinement, or an unexpected twist. California Faucets' new all-brass hardware collection gives designers and homeowners alike a wide range of shapes, textures, and artisan finishes to create a look that's distinctly their own.

"The right pull or knob can do so much more than complement cabinetry. It can be the detail that brings a whole design together, adds a little personality, or introduces an element of surprise that makes the design more interesting," says Jeff Silverstein, Head of Product and Brand at California Faucets. "I think the best interiors reflect the people who live in them. Hardware is another way to make a space feel personal and give it a look that's uniquely yours."

Designers also appreciate the convenience of coordinating cabinet hardware with faucets and fixtures from a single source. "What I love about California Faucets' hardware collection is that it takes the guesswork out of matching finishes, which can be a real challenge," says interior designer Christopher Grubb, Founder and President of Arch-Interiors Design Group. "Having everything available from one brand makes specifying so convenient."

A Style for Every Vision

California Faucets' hardware collection spans a range of styles, from the Greco-Roman inspired Tuolumne™ to the texture-rich Klamath™ and the sleek, contemporary Cachuma™. These options allow designers to stay true to a home's architectural style or use hardware as a striking accent.

Scale also plays an important role. Minimal profiles, such as the Shasta™ edge pull, let cabinet materials take center stage, while larger designs, including a new 12-inch pull, make a bolder statement and add architectural interest. Whether understated or more eye-catching, hardware can make a difference in the overall look and feel of the kitchen and bath.

Knobs range from traditional to modern, and everything in-between

Texture You can See and Feel

From smooth and pinstriped to knurled and hammered, texture offers another way to personalize kitchen and bath hardware. California Faucets' all-brass hardware collection includes a range of surface treatments, from subtle pinstripes that create a more understated look to bolder knurled and hammered patterns that add contrast and visual interest.

Texture also creates opportunities to play with the other materials in a space. Designers can pair textured hardware with natural wood grain, smooth cabinet fronts, or the organic veining of stone to create layered interiors that invite a closer look—and touch.

Artisan Finishes with Lasting Appeal

Matching finishes throughout a kitchen or bath is a popular choice, but there's also room to mix things up. California Faucets' hardware collection is available in all of the company's 26-plus artisan finishes, making it easy to coordinate cabinet hardware with faucets, shower fixtures, and accessories— or mix finishes to create variation and add a little drama. The selection includes ultra-durable PVD finishes guaranteed not to tarnish, as well as "living finishes" that develop a natural patina over time.

Each piece is hand-finished by skilled artisans at the company's Huntington Beach factory, reflecting the craftsmanship behind the collection.

From sculptural profiles and tactile surfaces to finishes that can be coordinated or mixed and matched, California Faucets' all-brass hardware gives designers plenty of ways to make a space their own.
